No other industry has responded so quickly and positively to the new framework conditions under the current government, in office since the end of 2015. A set of economic, fiscal and monetary measures has led to a new upturn in Argentina's most export-oriented sector, which offers excellent business and investment opportunities. Furthermore, this year the country is registering records in harvest numbers, in the purchase of agricultural machinery, in the use of fertilizers and, finally, in the use of the latest technology.
