

Short Bio – Teresa Kerber

Teresa Kerber is currently Program Coordinator of the Global Program ICT-based Adaptation to Climate Change in Cities (ICT-A) at the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH. Prior to that, she was a Knowledge Management Specialist in the Division Methodological Approaches at GIZ's Sectoral Department. Her areas of specialization include ICT for development, Smart Cities, Urban Development, Climate Change Adaptation and Mitigation, Governance, Local Economic Development, Value Chains, and Energy. She is working at GIZ's headquarters after supporting international development projects in Asia and Latin America as well as working for the private sector and academic institutions in Germany. She received her Ph.D. in Engineering from Hamburg University of Technology in 2005.